

PERSONAL WORKSPACE MANAGER

In today's call, control and dispatch center environments, Ergonomics (the science of human engineering) dictates that each individual be in arm's length control of all functions necessary to ensure comfort, safety and productivity while minimizing task interruptions. Americon has never been satisfied with the bulky, personal environmental systems available commercially or the ones offered by its competitors. Because of their shortcomings, we develop the "Personal Workspace Manager" which is both user-friendly and cost effective.

PWM-1000

Much more than just a desktop environmental system!

For decades we have provided our clients with communication hubs with power, data and voice above the worksurface; so, incorporating these components into a single appliance was a no brainer.

Above the worksurface there is:

- A desktop variable speed circulation system that directs filtered air through directional louvers
- Above counter RJ-45 communications jacks for connecting laptops and phones
- USB3 ports for connecting keyboards, mice, headsets, and other peripherals
- Above counter 15 AMP power receptacles to power laptops and other peripherals
- Optional lift control of motorized sit/stand systems
- Optional dimmer for task lighting
- Optional speakers for radios and computer alerts

This easy to install drop-in appliance is self-rimming and can be installed in almost any worksurface. The turret is only 4" tall and has a total footprint of 14" wide by 5" deep, it doesn't interfere with monitors arms, task lighting, storage trays or other peripherals that mount on slatwalls behind it.

BELOW THE WORKSURFACE

Below the worksurface, the PWM-1000 shows its versatility with:

- Variable-speed forced air leg warmer
- Filtered clean air system
- USB connectors for computer and radio integration
- RJ-45 communication jacks for networks and phones
- A full six receptacle surge protected 15 AMP power strip built into the chassis
