

Security Consoles

American security consoles are manufactured from the finished quality material. They are engineered to meet the many user idiosyncrasies associated with the surveillance environment. Many options are available for equipment mounting and storage. Surveillance consoles can be ordered in both straight and cockpit style configurations. All workstations are equipped with power strips and segregated cable management.

American security consoles are available with low-profile compact 4 RU equipment turrets incorporated seamlessly into the worksurface. Our unique material along with state of the art manufacturing processes allows us to present a freeformed, impact resistant product that has no seams and will not chip or peel. We incorporate continuous grommets in our turrets for mounting monitor arms, task lights and other peripherals. This design eliminates the need to predetermine the position of equipment and simplifies cable management.

Visionmaster

Americon is also a nationally recognized audiovisual integrator. We manufacture our own video walls that utilize the latest in ultra-thin mullion LCD/LED backlit display wall technology and pair it with base cabinetry that matches our workstations. There is no need to add backing to the wall behind as this system is supported from the floor. The complete package incorporates a video wall processor that turns the matrix of displays into a single desktop. Multiple images can be displayed simultaneously and can be scaled to fit anywhere on the virtual palette. Computer video, cameras, DVRs, browser windows and cable feeds can be recalled in high definition layouts through the remote control software that is included with every video wall system. Couple our Visionmaster with our security consoles and you have a turnkey solution that can't be beat.

All Americon products are hermetically-sealed to eliminate the effects of temperature and moisture and exceed ANSI-BIFMA standards. Our products are environmentally friendly and "American Made". Americon products can be acquired factory direct or through one of our regional sales offices.
